

That's the thesis right there: the tools got democratized, the expertise didn't. Binaural beats physically don't work without headphones — stereo separation is the mechanism — and 90% of the channels pumping this content don't even know that. They're selling placebo to people listening on phone speakers.

Interview done. Here's your business plan.

GLENN CARTER — POST-NSS BUSINESS PLAN

The Frequency Production Lane

Core positioning: The engineer in a market of tourists. 30 years of production craft in a space flooded by AI sludge from people who've never manifested anything. You don't sell frequencies — you sell correctly engineered, verifiably constructed audio experiences and the proof of process behind them.

Strategic frame: NSS is the exit asset (acqui-hire target). This lane is built to be lightweight, IP-generating, and personally sustainable — assets that compound while NSS shops itself.

1 — THE SAAS: FrequencyForge (working name)

What it is: A web app where coaches, influencers, and wellness creators build correctly engineered binaural/frequency sessions — without needing your 30 years.

Why you: You already proved you can build production software solo (a year of NSS apps). This is the intersection of both skillsets: audio engineering knowledge encoded into a tool.

How it works:

- User picks intent (focus, sleep, manifestation, chakra work) → the engine generates a technically correct session: proper carrier frequencies, correct beat frequency for the target brainwave band, headphone-check gate, entrainment ramp curves (not static tones — the thing novices get wrong)
- Layering engine: user uploads their voice affirmations → app handles subliminal mixing at correct dB offsets, stereo placement, masking

- Export with a "Verified Binaural" certificate — a report showing the construction (carrier Hz, beat Hz, ramp profile) that creators can show their audience
- White-label tier: influencers sell sessions to their audience under their brand, built on your engine

Why it wins: Every competitor sells finished audio. Nobody sells the engineering layer with proof-of-correctness. The "Verified" certificate is your CIP instinct applied to audio — deterministic validation, procurement-grade credibility, but for wellness content.

Model: €29–79/mo tiers + white-label at €199/mo. This is also itself sellable IP later — same playbook as NSS.

2 — TWO SERVICES TO START NOW

Service A: Signature Frequency Production (the Christina model, productized)

Done-for-you audio identity for coaches, authors, and speakers in the love/spirituality/manifestation space:

- Branded binaural meditation series matched to their book/course frameworks
- Avatar video + hypnotic visuals + entrainment audio (the exact demo that beat Christina's previous providers)
- Course audio architecture (what you're already building for Love Is Magic)

Pricing: €5–15k packages, MOA + deposit structure you already have. Christina is case study #1. Her results become the sales deck. Target: 1–2 clients at a time — high margin, low volume, respects your bandwidth while NSS negotiations happen.

Service B: The Frequency Audit

A €500–900 fixed-price teardown of an influencer's existing audio content: Is it actually binaural? Correct carrier frequencies? Does it work on speakers or only headphones? Are the subliminals audible/mixed correctly?

- Delivered as a branded PDF report — you literally already have the report engine and design system built
 - This is CIP for wellness audio. Low effort for you, devastating credibility play, and every audit is a sales funnel into Service A ("your audio is broken — here's what correct looks like").
-

3 — THREE DIGITAL PRODUCTS

Product 1: "Headphones Required" — The Honest Guide to Frequency Audio

The educational flagship: an ebook/video course explaining why 90% of frequency content is fake, how binaural actually works, how to listen correctly, how to spot sludge. You're the whistleblower with 30 years of receipts. Price: €47–97. This builds the audience you currently don't have — and positions every other offer.

Product 2: The Master Session Library

Your own premium catalog — 20–30 sessions, properly engineered, each shipped with its construction certificate (carrier/beat/ramp documented). Sold direct (Gumroad/own site), not given free to YouTube's algorithm. Price: €19 per session / €149 full library. Slow, permanent, compounding asset.

Product 3: Creator Templates Pack

Your production stack productized: DAW session templates, subliminal mixing chains, avatar + visual workflows, the exact pipeline from the Christina demo. Sold to the serious creators who want to level up past AI sludge. €149–299. Zero marginal cost after creation.

SEQUENCE (next 90 days)

1. Now: Finish Christina flawlessly — she's the case study everything else references
2. Weeks 2–6: Build the Frequency Audit offer (one week of work — you have the report tooling) + start "Headphones Required" as content
3. Weeks 6–12: Land 1 more Signature client from the audit funnel; spec FrequencyForge MVP
4. Parallel throughout: NSS acqui-hire outreach continues — this lane is deliberately independent of that outcome

The through-line: you're not entering the frequency market — you're auditing it. Same forensic instinct that built the royalty business, pointed at a space where you have 30 years of authority and the sludge-makers have 30 days.

Want me to build any piece of this next — the Frequency Audit report template, the FrequencyForge spec, or the "Headphones Required" outline?